SELIM MICHELSON.
NEW POSTMASTER.
NOW ON THE JOB

Ushered Into Office Without Ceremonies. Finds Conditions in First-class Shape

"I have nothing special to say, except that I am busy learning the ins and outs of the game, and so far am very pleased, with the state of affairs existing in the office."

That was about the only statement, Selim Michelson, new postmaster of the city of Phoenix, would give out. When interviewed, Mr. Michelson had been in possession of the office during the entire day, but had been so busy looking things over, that he was hardly sure whether his time was his own or not.

When the new postmaster showed up at his office in the federal building yesterday he found his desk all cleaned up, and shining with polish. On its broad surface, reposed several large bouquets from admirers and well wishers.

He immediately started upon a checking up of the accounts of the office. Late yesterday afternoon, he stated that he had found everything in excellent condition.

When asked whether he contemplated any changes in the personnel of his office force, Mr. Michelson stated that there would be no changes made for the time being.
